As an employee with the United States Department of Agriculture Farm Service Agency (FSA), you are able to truly make a difference in the lives of farmers and ranchers. FSA offers a broad range of career options, from working in a local office directly with farmers and ranchers, to formulating the policies providing the backbone of U.S. agriculture. Here at the state and local level, you can expect to be directly impacting producers of America's food, feed and fiber and helping farming communities.

Not all government employment is the same, and few places put the tools in your hands to directly help customers like FSA. This relationship makes the county FSA office a vital part of farming operations. Competitive wages and excellent benefits outline why FSA is a rewarding place to invest your time and talents. FSA is committed to training you for this opportunity and for a fulfilling career. There's no need to wait!
